

Adaptive reuse

Two success stories

Bellevue

On Tuesday 1 May, David Stevenson, architect of Lacoste and Stevenson, and Gary Waller, of G & C Waller Builders, provided a fascinating presentation of the conservation and adaptive reuse of Bellevue, on Blackwattle Bay. The audience of fifty Glebe Society members and friends were particularly pleased and impressed by the slides used to illustrate the talk of both presenters. It reminded us of the extreme state of dilapidation the building had been reduced to, and showed wonderful details of the techniques used and outcomes achieved.

Thanks are especially due to Diane Gray, Katharine Vernon and Dorothy Davis for the planning that went into the event, and assistance on the day from Neil, Anne and many others.

I especially want to thank the City Council for their enthusiastic assistance in making this presentation possible. Lise Morgan, the project

Toxteth Uniting Church

On Friday evening, 18 May, many members and other Glebe residents accepted the invitation to visit the former Uniting Church at 19a Toxteth Road which has been converted to residential use by the well-known heritage architect Otto Cserhalmi.

From the outside the building appears to be unchanged, but inside it has become a modern “upside down” four bedroom home. The architect has designed a glass and steel structure with a mezzanine floor that “clips” inside the church. The kitchen and living rooms are on this level, under the beams of the original vaulted ceiling.

The conversion is reversible, so the building could be turned back into a church in the future.

Five years ago, in Bulletin 7/2002, Neil Macindoe made this comment in his Planning Report:

Toxteth Uniting Church, 19 Toxteth Road

This temple, with the accompanying Hutchinson Memorial Hall (1898), is proposed to become residential. Some years ago the Uniters moved to the old City Mission Hall in St Johns Road, and more recently the kindergarten in Hutchinson Hall moved to St Brendan's Hall, Johnston Street, Annandale. Since then various unsuitable schemes have been mooted, but the present solution, whereby each building becomes a separate dwelling, with small extensions at the rear and fairly minimal alteration, is more acceptable, in the absence of any religious revival.

Now let's see what happens to the Abbey site.

Planning Matters

21 Toxteth Road

There is an application to demolish the small 1950s cottage and erect a much larger, modern, two storey dwelling. This site is next to Toxteth Church, a Heritage Item recently converted to residential use. The Society will object because of its excessive size, and also because the design uses materials that don't occur in Toxteth Road, namely a metal screen and weatherboard.

A Voice from the Past

I enjoyed the article by Robert Darroch, in Bulletin 3/2007, immensely. It had a vividness and immediacy that brought those early days to life. Glebe historians please note!

It also reminded me in my role as Planning Convenor that one of the two major planks in the defence of Glebe is our Heritage controls. These are contained largely in Local Environment Plan 2000 under Part 3, Heritage Conservation, and also under Schedule 2, Heritage Items. Both are accessible on the web.

The Bernard and Kate Smith book, The Architectural Character of Glebe, Sydney, published in 1973, is primarily an illustrated description of architectural styles that still has currency throughout Australia. It is definitely not a list of Heritage Items. Unfortunately, because many people have a copy and find it easier to access than the actual Heritage Study, which is in Glebe Library, people are sometimes tempted to use the Smith book in an inappropriate way.

Confidentiality of Objections

Members may be interested to know that their identity can be protected in certain circumstances when they object to a DA. Following is the advice from the City's legal advisors:

- the DA notification form states that objections will not be treated as confidential;

- notwithstanding that, a person may request that their objection (and/or their identity) be treated as confidential;
- if an FOI request is made for the objection, including the objector's identity, the usual practice is that:
 - (a) the objector will be consulted;
 - (b) the objection will be disclosed to the FOI applicant;
 - (c) the identity of the objector, and any identifying remarks in the objection (eg I live next door...) will not be disclosed if the objector's concern is related to their safety if their identity is made known to the DA applicant;
 - (d) in other circumstances, the objector's identity may be made known to the FOI applicant.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor

Tony Larkum's piece on Safety on the Bay, in Bulletin 3/2007, should remind us that the developments of the Dry Boat Storage and the Sydney Slipways are a total disaster for Rozelle Bay. The DA for the latter has been passed by the Minister (of course in the busy December month), and the other will surely follow this December. If anyone cares to find out what we are in for with the Slipways, I direct you to the NSW Government Department of Planning website: www.planning.nsw.gov.au/asp/pdf/05_0187director-generals_report.pdf.

This report shows clearly that the Sydney Slipways, "the biggest boat maintenance facility on Sydney Harbour", will cater mainly for 45m boats, employ 140 people, operate 24/7, create major chemical fumes and flying particles, which will spill out via chimney stacks, and also from outside treatment of boats directly, spill foul water into the Bay, contribute untold noise during 6 months of construction and after that, and destroy forever the northern view of Anzac Bridge across the water.

The Dry Boat Storage for more than 670 boats with marinas, berths, boat sale facilities, catering (surely with loud music over weekends) etc. etc, may not yet have passed the post entirely, but it is going through, make no mistake! Information about this DA can similarly be found in the Director General's report on the Department of Planning website.

Unfortunately I believe party politics played a role here in Glebe, otherwise I am at a loss why there were no attempts made to insist that these plans were scrapped, and that the proposed developments could possibly be located at the Bridge Road old coal loader bunker and gatehouse on Blackwattle Bay, where they would have formed a settlement of working harbour facilities with the Fish Markets (and incorporating the heritage gatehouse etc), while not creating residential impacts and problems of water traffic. Instead that site gets an utterly wasteful development for $30 million of "commercial buildings" and no doubt the rest will be a dead memorial to previous harbour activities. What a waste and what a pity!

I believe that, irrespective of which party is in power, fighting for heritage sites should not only mean a case for bricks and mortar, but also fighting for our waterways and foreshores, and sadly that does not appear to have the same importance for many people in Glebe. Vale Rozelle Bay!

Mia Campioni

Dear Editor

In the last Bulletin Neil Macindoe wrote about the loss of Bruce Ley from Leichhardt Council. Neil writes "it is difficult to imagine Leichhardt Council without him".

The small send off held for him at the Leichhardt Town Hall, which I attended with other grieving residents, was a testament to his standing with the people who live in the area.

Bruce was always accessible, with good advice and good humour. He has left his stamp on our suburbs and I earnestly hope that this stamp will be allowed to remain. As Neil writes, I believe he was undervalued by most Council staff and alderpersons.

Yours sincerely

Betty Mason, Annandale

Minister likely to approve dry boat storage

A second boat inspection trip was held on Saturday, 28 April. This time it was attended by Frank Sartor, Minister of Planning, as well as Verity Firth, Minister for Women, Science and Medicine. Officials from NSW Maritime and Sydney Harbour Foreshore Authority, representatives from the rowing community and the dragon boat community and Mark Dent from the Glebe Society also attended. Minister Sartor seemed convinced that the development should go ahead with conditions to power boating activities, as follows:

- 1) a 4-knot speed limit in Rozelle and Blackwattle Bays, and
- 2) a morning curfew on motorboat activity from dawn to 7.30am during the summer months.

The Glebe Society is still very concerned that these restrictions will not be effective safeguards for passive boating activities on the Bay. The Society is also concerned that other issues that have been voiced by the Society and other bodies, including Leichhardt Council, and have not been addressed satisfactorily. As a consequence, on Tuesday 8 May, the Society presented its petition of 1,260 signatures against the development, along with the letter reproduced below to the Premier, Morris Iemma.

- Tony Larkum

Dear Premier,

Proposed Dry Boat Storage facility on Rozelle Bay

The Glebe Society presents a petition of 1,260 signatures to not build the proposed Marine Centre incorporating a Dry Boat Storage Facility on Rozelle Bay (DA No. MP060210).

The Glebe Society and the Save Rozelle Bay Association have a number of concerns related to this proposal and our objections have been communicated to the Sydney Harbour and Foreshore authority at the appropriate time for submissions. We understand that the DA is now before the Minister for Planning, Hon Frank Sartor and that it is likely to be approved with conditions.

The major concern is over safety in Rozelle Bay and the adjoining Blackwattle Bay. These Bays have become a favourite site for passive boating activities, principally rowing, dragon boating and kayaks.

For the rowers the concern is early morning and dusk. Curfews may help the problem here. For the Dragon boats, the problem will be during the day and especially at weekends.

The proposal is for a boat storage capacity of 670 motor boats up to 12m in length. It is estimated, conservatively, that this will double the boat movements in this restricted area. At weekends the number of boat movements is estimated as approximately 650.

The combined effect of the danger of accidents from the wash created by motorboats, and the restriction on their activity caused by the limited area of the Bay that will remain available to them, is likely to result in destruction of this venue for passive boating in Sydney Harbour. In addition, there is a high probability of accidents involving motorboats, especially as they try to negotiate the only point of entry and exit to the combined Blackwattle and Rozelle Bays – through a single arch of the old Glebe Island Bridge.

The major aspects of this high-risk issue are:

- Boats circling the Bay as they queue to be stored in the late afternoon, even if only 10% of boats are out, will critically impact on passive boating at that time, if not at other times
- Massive reduction in the usable width of the bay by installation of a marina with long wharf extensions for 60 privately owned boats

- Wash created by motor boats, amplified by the shallow waters and sea-walls, would create dangerously unstable water conditions for passive boating
- Rowers and dragon boats would be forced to use parts of the bay which are dangerous because of shallow waters, the presence of swing moorings, or lack of visibility at the corner of the two Bays
- Gridlock would be created at the Glebe Island Bridge passage – the only point of entry and exit to the two Bays. This passage already suffers from congestion and confusions between different watercraft, and the recently approved commercial slipway will also add more vessel traffic.

We seek a resolution to these problems by compromise. Speed limits on the water (4 knots) and curfews will be partly beneficial, but they will only lead to further congestion in these enclosed waters. We suggest that the size of the proposal be reduced considerably, say to 400 boats, that is to Stage 1 of the proposal. This would not satisfy all our concerns but at least it would be a compromise that would be accepted by many of our members.

Yours sincerely

Come along to revisit this Glebe icon - and meet other Glebe Society members for an interesting occasion.

Glebe Library celebrates ten years in its new premises

It is hard to realise that it is ten years since the Glebe Branch Library moved from its small, shabby and leaky premises in Bridge Road to its present site at the corner of Glebe Point Road and Wigram Road. The opening was celebrated with a lively cocktail party that many Glebe Society members will remember.

This year, on the evening of 27 April, the tenth anniversary of the opening was celebrated at Benledi and in the library. About a hundred guests enjoyed drinks and abundant supplies of tasty nibbles while chatting, catching up with old acquaintances and reliving memories of the efforts that had been required of Glebe residents to achieve this outcome.

The site, at the corner of Glebe Point and Wigram Roads had been, for well over a century, a major focus in the suburb. The two buildings on the site, Benledi itself and the adjacent building both provided services to the community. Benledi, built in the late 1800s, was dedicated in 1902 by the Moore family as a community health centre. In 1915 the Sydney Homoeopathic Hospital moved into it from Redfern and it operated as a local hospital until its closure in 1989 by the Central Sydney Area Health Service. The running costs of the hospital were covered by a large bequest from the Moore estate and by personal subscriptions. The community also supported it with local fund raising.

The second building, erected in the 1870s, was at various times a Collegiate School (a private boarding school for boys), the home of the Sydney Hospital for Sick Children until overcrowding necessitated a move to larger premises in Camperdown, and eventually residential rooms and apartments. It was demolished in the 1960s to make way for an extension to the hospital. This, however, never eventuated.

The hospital, much appreciated by residents and doctors alike, was, like many other small local hospitals, taken over by the Health Department following changes in 1987 to the 1929 Public Hospital Act. It was shut down in 1989. The local community was distressed when the funds which had supported the hospital were absorbed into the general revenue of the Central Sydney Area Health Service, with a token nod to homoeopathic medicine being made at Balmain Hospital. The community still believes it was robbed.

The birthday cake that was cut on 19 April - the Library's actual anniversary. Photo: Jeanette Videc

Further turmoil ensued when the Health Department entered into an agreement with the Department of Corrective Services to sell the hospital for use as a transitional detention centre for female prisoners and their pre-school children. The debate split the community, with groups arguing strongly for and against the proposal. However, the idea of using the site as a library had been mooted, and the community came together behind this proposal. Leichhardt Council established a public fund in 1994 to collect monies for its purchase and lodged a submission to the Department of Health in early 1995 to buy the site for $1.4 million. The Glebe Library Fighting Fund came into being and action.

Concepts for the new library building were unveiled in late 1995, and construction began a year later, with a budget of $1 million. The new library was officially opened on Saturday, 19 April, 1997. In 2003, with the transfer of Glebe to the City of Sydney, the library became part of a network of eight libraries serving the city.

Since 1997, the Library has developed both its collections and services. It now houses some 45,000 items, including books, newspapers, magazines, CDs and DVDs. It has special collections in local history, HSC materials, toys and language learning. It runs programs such as Storytimes for pre-schoolers, school holiday activities for children and two reading groups for adults. In late 2006 a change of opening hours enabled the library to open all day on Saturday, to the pleasure of its readers.

The library stands as a tribute to the efforts of the residents of Glebe to obtain the best possible services for their community. It is a place dear to their hearts, and the celebrations last month recognised its importance and value.

Art and About - Glebe on Track

Plans are progressing for Glebe on Track, our suburb's contribution to the City's 2007 Art and About event.

Two photography workshops at the Glebe Youth Service are being organised.

One is for the Year 10 studies group and the other for a general group. Both will be working on images for dioramas and a wallpaper of photos incorporating photos from Glebe's past, contributed by Max Solling. The extent of the displays will be determined by our success or lack of success with the Council grant application.

It is hoped that local business will enter partnership agreements to ensure the best outcome for the project.

Other plans under discussion include:

Projecting workshop images onto buildings, as well as DVD image shows on screens in selected shopfronts and The Glebe Library.

The Fluoro Bike Ride, Saturday 13 October, 7pm, which will be promoted as a low-tech eco-friendly event. Bike riders and walkers will be invited to wear flashing fluoro lights and decorations. They can be part of the show and tour the Glebe on Track sites seeing images on screens and projections as well as photo shows through the windows. They can finish the night at one of Glebe's cafes, pubs, or restaurants.

A brochure with a map of the art sites and cafes, pubs, restaurants will be given to participants. The Glebe community will be invited and other cycle groups will be informed with the phrase 'find your way to Glebe on Track'. This is a great opportunity for a partnership with the Glebe Chamber of Commerce.

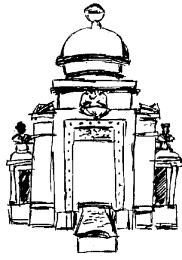

It is hoped that art images from the broader community can be incorporated into Glebe on Track. Again, the extent of our available funding will determine the size of the show.

Anzac Day ceremony 2007

The ceremony held at the War Memorial in Foley Park on Anzac Day was attended by more than twenty people, including a number of Society members. Max Solling spoke about the history of war memorials themselves, which were always a local response to the commemoration of those who served and died in war, especially in the First World War.

The upgrade of Foley Park includes an expanded area around the War Memorial for use on such occasions, and when it is completed it will be possible to publicise the annual Anzac Day event in Glebe and accommodate a larger group.

Crime in Glebe

At the April meeting of FLAG (Forest Lodge and Glebe Groups) Sergeant Rob Gallagher from Glebe Police gave a report on crime in Glebe.

- In the past two months there had been a slight increase in thefts from persons and theft from motor vehicles.
- Theft from persons tends to occur late at night and mostly on Glebe Point Road.
- Assaults decreased in April.
- Police have foot patrols operating Thursday to Sunday nights in specific areas. These areas have been identified as 'hot spots' through Police intelligence.

What you can do:

- Report any crime which affects you, or that you witness, even if it seems trivial. All reporting is confidential and Police do not need to attend the home, if there are issues with neighbours suspicious of being reported.
- DO NOT leave items on show in motor vehicles.

- Lock car doors whilst driving.

Reporting of crime contributes to Police intelligence and supports Police to know where to target their services. The Local Area Commander (LAC) Wayne Cox, based at Glebe Police Station, has a very strong community safety philosophy.

Contact Glebe Police Station on 9552 8099 for local action. For serious and urgent action ring 000.

This documentary film, Rocking the Foundations, made by Pat Fiske, tells the story of the NSW Builders Labourers Federation and its attempts to save historic Sydney buildings and communities. It has particular resonance for the residents of the Glebe community who fought to save Glebe from having a freeway in our midst. The film will be shown in the theatre at Sydney Secondary College, Ferry Road Glebe. A flyer will be included in the next Bulletin with all the information.

Membership Renewals 2007/8

If you are a member of the Glebe Society who joined before 1 January 2007, your membership is now due for renewal.

This year, for the first time, you can renew your membership electronically as an alternative to completing the hard copy renewal form enclosed with this Bulletin. The two electronic options are:

- ◆ Pay via the Society's web site (www.glebesociety.org.au) using your credit card. You will need to follow the link from the home page to the electronic renewal form where you should fill in the same personal details.
- ◆ Pay by direct transfer to the Glebe Society's bank account. This requires two steps:
 - first go to the renewal form on the website (same procedure as for credit card payment) and fill in your personal details (address, phone number etc.);
 - then use your bank's internet "pay anyone" facility to transfer your payment to the Society's bank account. The Society's bank details you will require are on the hard copy renewal form enclosed with this Bulletin. It is important that you include your membership ID (also on the mailing label on your hard copy renewal form), or some other means of identifying you when you lodge your payment this way. Banks usually provide a field called "message" or "reference" that can be used for this purpose.

Thirsty Thursdays

All members are invited to meet for dinner in Glebe on the first Thursday of each month, to eat and talk with other people who live in Glebe.

The May event, at Haiphong Harbour, 28 Glebe Point Road, was a great success.

On Thursday 7 June we will go back to La Tavolaccia Garden Restaurant, 355 Glebe Point Road, which is BYO.

For Thursday 4 July, Simon Fraser has suggested the Polish restaurant Na Zdrowie, at 161 Glebe Point Road. Google says the name means "Cheers" in Polish. There is a bar in London of the same name.

On 2 August, we will return to Asia. Cheryl and Bryan have suggested Thai Thiu, at 35D Ross Street, which is BYO.

Welcome to New Members

The following people were accepted as members of the Glebe Society at the May Management Committee meeting. We look forward to seeing them at future Glebe Society functions.

How Green is Your Thumb? Garden Competition 2007

Sydneysiders with green thumbs are invited to enter the City of Sydney's fourth annual Garden Competition.

Garden owners can enter into six categories including the popular "Best Sustainable Garden" category which has doubled in popularity over the past two years. Entries must be visible from the street.

Last year's overall winner was John Williams of Glebe. This year's entries are open from 21 May until 27 August. Judging will occur in September after which a special prize presentation, hosted by Lord Mayor Clover Moore MP, will take place on 31 October. The competition is open to all residents within the City of Sydney Local Government Area. Winners will share in a prize pool of $20,000 of which more than half is funded by an $11,500 bequest.

For more information and to find out how enter call 9265 9333 or visit www.cityofsydney.nsw.gov.au/whatson.
